She added that there was an understanding that Trump's team had realized that it was impossible to reach an agreement between Moscow and Washington, if to consider Russia an enemy and there was only political solution to the ongoing crisis in the Middle Eastern nation.

According to the politician, the Syrian opposition High Negotiations Committee (HNC) hoped for victory of the Democratic Party's Hillary Clinton and they had even ended their participation in Geneva talks on Syrian settlement after Trump's victory.

During his election campaign Trump said that the incumbent Syrian President Bashar Assad was not an ideal Syria's governor, but several opposition groups that could come to power after his resignation could be worse . Trump said that his priority in Syria would be to eliminate the Daesh jihadist group and not to remove Assad from power.
